1. Introduction

This document summarizes the controlled vocabularies to be used in the VHH project as well as the methodologies and processes applied to create them.

It refers to existing vocabularies that are reused in VHH and presents newly created vocabularies that have been developed for the specific objectives of VHH. Those two types of vocabularies constitute the VHH Vocabularies providing the values for those elements, attributes and relationships within the VHH-EFG Metadata Schema that are defined by controlled vocabularies.

The purpose of this document is to

- provide descriptive and analytical terms for the metadata enrichment of filmic and related non-filmic heritage material;
- inform the implementation of the Digital Asset Management (DAM) component of the Visual History of the Holocaust Media Management and Search Infrastructure (VHH-MMSI);
- serve as best practice model to institutions evaluating and creating vocabularies for metadata enrichment.

This document is a living document reflecting the outcomes of year 1 of a 4-year project. There will be adaptions of and extensions to the VHH Vocabularies until MMSI v1 will be completed in M20 (August 2020). Some adaptions are expected to occur even after this deadline and will be based on tests of and experiences with metadata enrichment through the VHH-MMSI.

This deliverable is to be used together with the following deliverables:

- D4.2 Metadata Integration Concept (M12)
- D3.1 Definition of Engagement Levels, Usage Modes, and User Types (M12)
- D5.1 Requirements Document (M8)
- D5.3 System Design v1 (M12)

2. Methodological background

Within a metadata schema, controlled vocabularies have two main functions:

- to limit the number of possible values in a field
- to reduce the ambiguities of natural language

However, thoroughly created vocabularies will not only provide lists of vocabulary entries but also definitions of each entry's meaning and its relation to other entries in the list, which is now called an "ontology" in information science.

A controlled vocabulary is a glossary, not a dictionary: it does not contain every word or phrase actually used in a specific language but rather a carefully selected and well-defined list from a specific domain of that language, excluding homonyms and synonyms (or rather relating to them). Controlled vocabularies are at the core of subject headings, thesauri and taxonomies.

Indexing has been a key task in library science since its beginnings. Its methods have been adopted as well as adapted by archival science. Indexes are commonly described as lists of words or phrases (traditionally called "headings") associated with pointers ("locators") providing the basis for any targeted search and find functionalities. An index entry in a library catalog or archival catalog usually refers to a call number (of a book, a file etc.) while in a book index (also called "back-of-the-book index") an entry usually refers to a page number or any other part of the book. In both cases the index is used to find something: a book on a shelf or a file in a box, a section in a book.

It is also common to distinguish between three main types of indexing languages:¹

- free indexing language: any term (not only from the document) can be used to describe the document
- natural language indexing language: any term from the document in question can be used to describe the document
- controlled indexing language: only approved terms can be used by the indexer to describe the document

While the VHH-EFG Metadata Schema in some of its fields gives room to the first two, most of its fields are restricted to controlled indexing language aka controlled vocabularies. This is not due to disregard for the richness and power of natural language but to specific requirements in a scholarly informed project: the need to apply terms consistently

- to allow for structured search functionalities (in a tree data structure)
- to make the indexed elements comparable to each other and thus quantifiable

The art of indexing always consisted of a certain and sometimes uncertain balance between the literal repetition of terms used in a document and their subsumption under terms that may or may not be used literally in the document. In that sense, even descriptive terms have an analytical dimension as far as they generate at least some normalization. Anticipating and facilitating search queries are the main functions of every index in the digital as well as in the analog realm.

Full-text search may replace the art of indexing in computing. However, even if full-text search is based on an index that contains every term used in a text, technologies are developed and applied to sort terms based on their relevance and information gain to retrieve meaningful concepts from this text. Controlled vocabularies provide such meaningful concepts.

With images the situation is slightly different. Other than with texts there are usually not too many words to generate an index with meaningful entries but no words at all. Indexing images at the same time means verbalizing those images. However, there is usually much more information in images than may be verbalized, particularly in moving images.

With time-based visual and audiovisual media, the pointer (“locator”) of each index entry in addition to a position in space needs to point to a position in time.

In a project such as VHH which aims at linking images and texts, controlled vocabularies play a crucial role in creating a shared index for different media types. This is particularly true if indexes are created in two ways, manually and automatically, the latter through automated analysis tools. Employing at least parts of the same vocabularies for both allows for retraining of automated analysis tools through manual indexing.

While often generally referred to as “terms”, VHH strictly distinguishes between terms and names.

Terms in that sense may be more or less normalized, they always subsume other terms and refer to a class. Names may be proper names of persons, organizations or places, they always refer to an individual. The lists of terms in controlled vocabularies are by definition finite, the lists of names are potentially infinite.

Here are a few more definitions: terms and names from controlled vocabularies may also be called descriptors regardless of their analytical dimension. Terms and names used for the description of content may also be called tags. The process of relating terms to targets is called annotation which may result in time-based annotations (TBA) or non-time-based annotations (NTBA). Annotations are metadata.

The VHH Vocabularies

- contain both terms and names;
- are not restricted to the description of content but used to specify any element, attribute or relation of an entity;
- if used for content description always refer to so called content components that need to be located in selected parts of a media object.

Whenever possible, VHH

- uses existing vocabularies;
- adapts existing vocabularies instead of creating new ones;
- embeds newly created vocabularies in existing ontologies;
- adapts existing ontologies instead of creating new ones.

In order to achieve these goals, VHH heavily draws on Linked Open Data (LOD). Every term and every name included in the VHH Vocabularies is or will be linked to an LOD entry. Regardless of its obvious disadvantages, VHH opted for Wikidata as its preferred LOD source for both terms and names. The availability of synonyms and translations into various languages is the major strength of Wikidata, the inconsistency of its attempt to create an ontology its major weakness. However, the collective co-creation process on which Wikidata is built is at the same time its strength and its weakness (with an emphasis on strength). VHH decided to contribute to this process rather than creating a proprietary database. Being a large-scale construction site, Wikidata also allows for adding terms and names that are not to be found in other LOD sources. However, if entries are available VHH will also link the names in its vocabularies to authority files (such as GND – Integrated Authority File) to avoid ambiguities as far as possible.

If new vocabularies had or will have to be created, a few general principles were and will be applied.

It is a common and useful distinction that choices of authorized terms (and names) in controlled vocabularies are and ought to be based on three principles:²

- user warrant (what terms users are likely to use)
- literary warrant (what terms are generally used in the literature and documents)
- structural warrant (terms chosen by considering the structure, scope of the controlled vocabulary)

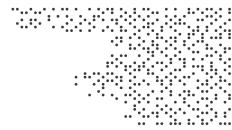

VHH vocabularies are therefore based on

- the anticipation of questions users might have;
- expert knowledge about the form and the content of the material;
- considerations regarding consistency.

As regards consistency, the aim was and is to

- create exhaustive sets of vocabularies for each domain;
- include subsets of terms that are complete and mutually exclusive;
- restrict the terms of each set to the same level of description (avoid including broader terms and narrower terms in the same set).

in the Digital Age

However, the VHH Vocabularies remain open for future edits and additions. The VHH-MMSI includes the editing and even the creation function of vocabularies as a feature³, distinguishing between public vocabularies and private vocabularies. Private vocabularies may be created without limitation by users within their private workspace, they may also be shared with other users in a shared workspace. Public vocabularies may be edited and expanded by authorized users. As they are available in all workspaces it should only be taken into consideration that, for the sake of consistency of annotations, newly introduced terms will also have to be applied to films and non-filmic documents that have already been annotated.

³ Cf. Deliverable 5.1 Requirements Document (Mo8)

3. Creation processes

To create the VHH Public Vocabularies, a mix of different approaches has been applied:

- extracting terms and names from primary and secondary sources (text documents)
- evaluation, consolidation and adaption of vocabularies from peer projects
- research on and evaluation of other existing vocabularies
- classification of image relations on the basis of examples
- brainstorming of VHH team experts in meetings and workshops

The results have been consolidated and thoroughly reviewed.

3.1. Primary and secondary sources

VHH uses the reference management and knowledge organization software Citavi⁴ to generate vocabularies. In M01 (Jan. 2019) a Citavi Cloud project was set up as a multifunctional repository⁵ to collect text documents:

- primary sources (mainly archival documents)
- secondary sources (mainly scholarly literature)

In Citavi's knowledge organization infrastructure, so called "categories" are usually used to structure research papers and create a table of contents. VHH, however, co-opted the Citavi categories to generate structured lists of vocabularies. In a bottom-up approach significant terms and names have been extracted from primary and secondary source on the fly by VHH team experts while studying those text documents. This process started in M01 and was put on hold in M11 to consolidate the generated vocabularies.

3.2. Vocabularies from peer projects

Three peer projects provided the main sources for vocabularies reused in VHH:

- EFG – The European Film Gateway⁶
- Ephemeral Films: National Socialism in Austria (EFilms)⁷
- I-Media-Cities⁸

EFG

EFG published comprehensive sets of controlled vocabularies specifically assembled and generated for the description of AV and Non-AV materials within the EFG Metadata Schema which is based on the metadata standard EN 15907.⁹ With the decision to comply with EN 15907 and to build the metadata schema of the VHH project on the EFG Metadata Schema (the VHH-EFG Metadata Schema¹⁰), it was an obvious step to evaluate the EFG Vocabularies for reuse.

This evaluation process took place in M10 (Oct. 2019) and was based on two criteria:

- relevance for the specific content of VHH
- consistency of the respective sets

EFilms

Within the EFilms project (2011–2016), for the first time, controlled vocabularies for time-based annotation of films had been created which provided the basis for the vocabularies developed in the I-Media-Cities project (2016–2019).

I-Media-Cities

Though I-Media-Cities was a project on city films, large parts of its controlled vocabularies may be used for time-based annotation of films in general. Starting in M09 (Sept. 2019), those relevant parts were determined in a separate evaluation process.

3.3. Other existing vocabularies

In M10 (Oct. 2019) other existing vocabularies were researched and evaluated, including thesauri and subject headings provided and/or used by USHMM, Library of Congress¹¹, USC Shoah Foundation¹², Fortunoff Video Archive¹³, Yad Vashem, Mémorial de la Shoah, EHRI¹⁴, Getty Images¹⁵.

The FIAF Glossary of Filmographic Terms¹⁶ which has already been integrated into the EFG vocabularies, has been consulted on a regular basis.

3.4. Classification of image relations

Based on a collection of examples from a variety of image sources (films, photographs, artworks, graphic novels etc.), a Taxonomy of Relations was drafted by HUJI as a comprehensive set of descriptive and analytical terms to classify the relation between films and photographs from the liberation and their reuse in various media. This draft taxonomy was discussed in a workshop in M08 (Aug. 2019), revised and presented in another workshop in M11 (Nov. 2019).

3.5. Meetings and workshops

From M01 (Jan. 2019) to M14 (Feb. 2020) several meetings in various constellations were held at LBI and HUJI to brainstorm, discuss and edit specific sets of vocabularies.

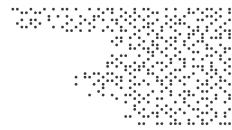

To include a larger number of stakeholders, three workshops with a focus on vocabularies took place:

- Workshop “Taxonomy of Relations”, organized and hosted by LBI in Vienna (M08, Aug. 19-20, 2019) with HUJI, OFM, LBI and external stakeholders participating
- Workshop “Vocabularies”, organized and hosted by LBI in Vienna (M12, Nov. 21-22, 2019) with HUJI, JLU, MM, OFM, TUW and LBI participating
- Workshop “Citavi”, organized and hosted by LBI in Vienna (M14, Feb. 13-14, 2020) with HUJI, JLU, CERCEC, UBremen and LBI participating

3.6. Consolidation and review

Starting in M09 (Sept. 2019), an Excel workbook consisting of several spreadsheets was created by LBI and used to consolidate vocabularies from different sources. Only the EFG vocabularies were kept in a separate Excel workbook. Shared as cloud-based OneDrive documents, the vocabulary sets were edited in a team effort at LBI. For every single vocabulary entry, LOD availability was checked in Wikidata. If available, Wikidata links, labels and descriptions were added to each entry. Wikidata information already attached to reused I-Media-Cities vocabulary entries were double-checked and sometimes replaced. The process of creating new entries in Wikidata was started.

Rethinking Curation
in the Digital Age

Participants of the Vocabularies Workshop were invited to review, edit and expand the vocabulary sets in M12 (Dec. 2019).

With regard to their implementation in Citavi and possible changes deriving therefrom, it was decided to wait for the Citavi Workshop in M14 (Feb. 2020) to complete deliverable D4.1 Vocabularies Specification.

4. The VHH Vocabularies: overview

This chapter provides an overview of the vocabulary sets reused and newly created in VHH. On this level of description reused means that full sets of vocabularies are reused. Newly created vocabularies may also partially contain reused vocabulary entries.

4.1. Reused vocabularies

The EFG vocabularies already include reused vocabulary sets from other sources (such as ISO) which are here listed as EFG vocabularies.

EFG vocabularies reused

The following EFG vocabularies will be reused in VHH without any changes. As the full sets have already been published,¹⁷ there is no need to republish them in this deliverable.

- AgentRelation¹⁸
- AspectRatio
- AVTitleType
- CarrierType
- CBDateType
- CBNameType
- Colour
- DimensionUnitCS
- Gauge
- GDateType
- ISO 639-1:2002 Codes for the representation of names of languages - Part 1: Alpha 2 code

¹⁸ This is actually not a specification of relations but rather a comprehensive vocabulary set of roles in film production

EFG vocabularies adapted

The following EFG vocabularies will be reused in VHH with adaptions. As of M14 (Feb. 2020) they are still in a process of refinement and will be published in an updated version of this deliverable.

- AgentRelatedToAgent
- AVManifestationRelation
- AVTitleUnit
- EventTypes
- FileFormatCS
- IDScheme
- LanguageUsage
- NonAVRelatedToAV
- PDateType
- PNamePart
- PNameType
- PPlaceType
- Regions_LocallyDefined
- RightsStatus
- Sound

EFG vocabularies partially integrated

The following EFG vocabularies will be partially integrated into newly created vocabulary sets of NTBA Terms. As of M14 (Feb. 2020) they are still in a process of refinement and will be published in an updated version of this deliverable.

- Form
- ObjectStatus
- ObjectType
- SpecificType

EFG vocabularies not reused

The following EFG vocabularies will not be reused in VHH.

- AVCreationRelationCollectionType
- CollectionRelation
- CountryOfReference
- DescriptionType
- KeywordType
- MARC21_GeoAreasCS
- NonAVRelatedToNonAV

- NonAVTitleType
- ObjectDateType
- ProviderName

4.2. Newly created vocabularies

ContentComponent Terms

The following vocabulary sets have been developed to describe the specific content of the filmic and non-filmic material in VHH. They are partially based on vocabularies from the peer projects EFilms and I-Media-Cities. The full sets are included in Appendix A of this deliverable.

- Action
- Animal
- Audio
- BuildingOrConstruction
- Event
- MeansOfTransportation
- Nationality
- Organization
- Person
- Plant
- Sign
- Space
- Thing
- TimeOfDay
- Weather

Taxonomy of Relations

EFG only provided very limited and partially developed vocabulary sets to describe relations. The Taxonomy of Relations was developed for the specific research interest of VHH, to describe and analyze the reuse of liberation images in various media but may be adapted to specify other forms of reuse not related to the Holocaust. It is not included in this deliverable and will be published separately.

Other TBA Terms

Vocabulary sets specifying segment types, transition techniques and preservation issues as of M14 (Feb. 2020) are still in the making. The following vocabularies have been created and are included in Appendix B of this deliverable:

- ShotTechnique

NTBA Terms

Vocabulary sets specifying asset types as of M14 (Feb. 2020) are still in the making.

Names

Names of persons, organizations and places are created on the fly, normalized through linking to LOD sources but unlimited in their number. They are not included in this deliverable.

However, a specific list has been created that is included in Appendix C of this deliverable:

- HistoricRegion
